

drug info @ your library

drug info @ your library provides up to date information about alcohol and drugs through a website and local public libraries in New South Wales.

The drug info @ your library website is a free community resource offering 24/7 access to valuable information for the community with sections tailored for young people, parents and carers, and educators. The service is supported by a collection of hard copy drug and alcohol resources available in all NSW public libraries.

Through the public library network drug info @ your library extends across NSW to make resources available to those in remote areas and increases local awareness of drug and alcohol issues.

drug info @ your library has been providing accessible drug information to communities through public libraries and the web since 2002. The drug info @ your library service is jointly funded by NSW Health and the State Library of NSW.
